MUSCLE SCANNING

Muscle scanning was performed through Cousins Merino Services of Burra on 10/05/2021.

Ultrasound scanning enables ram buyers to accurately select rams based on how well muscled and how fat that animal is and without harming the animal.

It is also a valuable tool in breeding programs to promote genetic gain in carcase traits, especially when it is incorporated into estimated breeding values.

EYE MUSCLE DEPTH (PEMD)

This is the depth of the eye muscle, measured at the C site (45mm from the centre of the spine).

Research from MLA and the Sheep CRC indicate that selecting a ram with a more positive eye muscle depth can:

- Produce lambs with greater muscling and the potential for higher yielding carcasses.
- Produce progeny with a higher proportion of their carcase weight in the more valuable loin and hind quarter area of the carcase.
- Research based on the eating quality of meat indicates that lambs with greater EMD are less prone to stress and dark cutting.

FAT DEPTH (PFAT)

This is the measurement of fat depth at the C Depth.

- A deeper measurement indicates a fatter carcase
