FIVE NO-BULL REASONS TO AUTOMATE

Electronic Identification (EID) means individual animals can be tracked through their entire life cycle via an electronic ear tag.

Whilst the government introduced NLIS scheme has made EID mandatory, there are greater benefits to be had from employing EID in your farming operation. Tagging animals with an electronic (EID) tag provides an opportunity to better manage the individual performance of those animals.

Over time, an animal's weight history can be tracked, good and bad performers can be identified and the input of resources managed to ensure profits are maximised.

Tru-Test EID readers deliver information about your livestock rapidly, by reading electronic ear tags on animals that are on a weigh platform, or running through a race.

All Tru-Test EID readers are rugged, reliable, 100% water and dust proof, and come with a 2 year warranty.

WE PUT TRU-TEST TO THE TEST

PRODUCTS ON TRIAL ID5000 INDICATOR XRP2 PANEL READER HD1010 LOADBARS

Cattle farmers Paula and John Kilgariff made the switch to electronic weighing last year... right when the year's first truckload of weaner steers was due in their yards.

At a time where a mistake could have meant re-weighing hundreds of cattle, getting the system set up was simple. "Fortunately, our local Tru-Test guy was just a phone call away" says Paula. "He came out to our place and made sure everything was tested and ready to go."

Over the past year, Paula and John have used their EID system to track weight gain in their 800 black angus steers, drafting them by weight range and using data to identify high performers.

"The efficiency improvements are impressive, even in our smaller operation. I wish we'd had access to this technology back when we were running 7500 head in the Territory."

Paula and John's next upgrade will be an auto-drafter. "With Tru-Test, you get a human face to go with the technology - someone you can call with your questions while you're stuck out on your own with a hundred cattle in the yards."

Paula & John Kilgariff, Bray, South Australia.
